

If you think of DNA as a twisted ladder, what makes up the sides of the DNA ladder?

- A Amino acids connected by peptide bonds.
- B Sugar and phosphate groups of adjacent nucleotides.
- C Nucleotide bases connected by hydrogen bonds.
- D Tightly bound glucose subunits.

The backbone of each DNA molecule is composed of sugars alternating with phosphate groups.

Answer B.

Starr C'12'01 2002-10-23