

To which fungal group does the black bread mold, Rhizopus, belong?

A the club fungi

B the sac fungi

C the zygomycetes

If hyphae of two Rhizopus strains meet, their cytoplasm joins, and their haploid nuclei are brought together. These nuclei fuse to form a zygote, which then develops into a thick-walled zygospore.

Answer C.

Starr C'21'08 2002-10-23