

What type of plant tissue makes up most of the primary tissues of roots, stems, leaves, flowers, and fruits?

A parenchyma

B collenchyma

C schlerenchyma

Parenchyma cells typically are thin-walled, pliable, and many-sided. When mature, they stay alive and retain the capacity to divide.

Answer A.

Starr C'25'01 2002-10-23