

Which organ system is responsible for the movement of body parts and is a major source of body heat?

A endocrine system

B muscular system

C respiratory system

The muscular system maintains posture and allows the movement of internal body parts, as well as the body as a whole. Muscles are also important in thermoregulation; they produce heat when they contract.

Answer B.

Starr C'28'11 2002-10-23