

A neuromuscular junction is a chemical synapse between a motor neuron and a muscle cell. Which of these cells contain synaptic vesicles filled with the neurotransmitter acetylcholine (ACh).

A motor neuron

B muscle cell

C neither

D both

A neurotransmitter is released from a presynaptic cell—the motor neuron—and diffuses to the postsynaptic cell—the muscle cell— where it binds to specific protein receptors.

Answer A.

Starr C'29'08 2002-10-23