

How many egg-laying females do you usually find in a honeybee colony of 50,000 bees?

A about 25,000

B about 500

C five to ten

D one

Both the queen and the workers are female, but under normal circumstances the workers are sterile. As long as there is a queen present in the colony, only she will lay eggs.

Answer D.

Starr·C·44·10 2002-10-23