

By what process do the cells in this juvenile baboon divide their cytoplasm during the mitotic divisions that will allow it to grow to adulthood?

- A cleavage
- B cell plate formation

---

In organisms without cell walls, cytoplasmic division proceeds by the process known as cleavage.

Answer A.