

From what type of tissue are the exocrine glands that secrete sweat derived?

- A muscle tissue
- B connective tissue
- C epithelial tissue
- D cartilaginous tissue

Exocrine glands are derived from epithelial tissue and release their products through ducts.

Answer C.