

The _____ deviation of a set of numbers is the positive square root of the mean of the squares of the differences of the numbers from the mean.

- A) normal
- B) strange
- C) different
- D) standard

The standard deviation of a set of numbers is the positive square root of the mean of the squares of the differences of the numbers from the mean.

Answer D.

gfbj'09'01'18 2006-11-20