

If both sides of an equation are _____(or _____) by the same nonzero number, a new equation is formed that is equivalent to the original equation.

- A) added replaced
- B) subtracted replaced
- C) multiplied replaced
- D) multiplied divided

If both sides of an equation are multiplied (or divided) by the same nonzero number, a new equation is formed that is equivalent to the original equation.

Answer D.